yesterday (says The Standard of the 17th September) that on Friday evening over forty children, the sons and daughters of gunners engaged at the Thames forts, had been poisoned. The gunners assembled in a field at Tilbury Fort for some sports, and their children were by the Military authorities given a treat, at which ham and beef sandwiches were liberally supplied. Suddenly a boy commenced to vomit, and fell prone as if lifeless. Whilst he was receiving attention a second and a third fell. Then in all about twenty collapsed together, and within an hour nearly all the children who had feasted were lying about the field like corpses. Great consternation was naturally caused. Fortunately Surgeon-Major Bryden and Colonel Prescott were on the scene, and treated all the cases as promptly as possible. CANTON NOTES

(From Our Own Correspondent.) STRIKE OF THE FISH DEALERS. Canton, October 21.

Fearing that the construction of the Bund at Wong She, which is on the west end of Canton, would interfere with the landing of cargoes from their boats, last week the fish guild ordered the suspension of business. A strong Proclamation from the Nam Hoi magistrate has perhaps prevented an extension of the strike. In the meantime, the men connected with the police were stoned, but charged the riotern feeling against the work now going on at the new Bond. On Saturday, work had to be suspended. A body of rioters, numbering several hundreds strong from the neighbouring villages, assembled at Wong Sha and began stone throwing. The workmon were obliged to withdraw, and the soldiers were called out to preserve the peace. The rioters, who exceeded the soldiers in numbers, were not inclined to obey. The arrest of nine ringleaders had the desired effect, and the rest slank away. The preliminary examination of the prisoners brought to light the fact that a tenn so, or scholar of the third degree, organized the attack of Saturday. He had represented to the villagers-mostly. ploughmen-that the making of the Bund would be disastrous, by causing floods and the destruction of the crops. The trial is delayed to make inquiries into the truth of this allegation. If it proves true, a very severe punishment-including the degradation of the toun as ought to follow. At 4 p.m., on the 25th September, Lance Sergeant Smith, the complainant, was on duty between Bonham Strand and Wing Lok Street. The second defendant came up to him and took an envelope from under his jacket and China respecting revision of the Treaties showed it to him. He then pointed out Wing Lok Street, and said something to the > men five or six pieces basket, I pay you good pidgin. Complainant replied that he would only allow them two baskets. The Acting Attorney General then explained that there were a great many fruit hawkers outside of the Western Market. The first defendant had a small fruit stall in the Market, and was in the habit of selling fruit to hawkers in Bonham Strand. Naturally, both from the seller of fruit to hawkers and from the point of view of the second defendant as a hawker of fruit, it would be to the advantage both of the seller and of the hawker that the hawker be allowed by the Police to have a greater number of baskets set out in Bonham Strand than the number allowed by the police, which in the present instance, was two. (From Our Own Correspondent.) London, September 20.

For the third time in a century not yet three hundred days old, the courts of the civilised world are in mourning, and for the third time within less than their President by an assassin's blow. countries. Everything in the mental tends to gravitate to the great American republic, where more than elsewhere every crank has a hearing and an opportunity. The Lion and the Bear have no use for eccentricity, the Eagles of Central Europe are too old to be caught with chaff, but the younger nations of the West have become the sink of the world (senting gentium) and there is no marvellous revelation, i.e., no dangerous lunacy, that will not and what a man in the old world would think and hesitate over, his brother in - the west translates into prompt action. President McKinley res's in Canton, Ohio; it is a curious fact that not one of the States is buried in Washington,

I believe the trial of Czolgosz will begin next Monday and finish on the following day, and that he will hanged on Wednesday, Nov. 6, allowing an interval of six full weeks between sentence and execution. There is not likely to be anything like the shameful loitering of slow-footed justice that there was in the case of Guiteau. The present temper of the American people would not tolerate it, and no one can blame them, for if there be degrees in such a crime as assassinution, the foulest of all is when the dagger or pistol strikes down a harmless victim of blameless life unassociated with any barshness or tyranny of government.

The Victoria University at Manchester is to be heartily congratulated on its most recent appointment. The chair of Chinese has at last been filled, and by no less famous an expert than Mr E. H. Parker. Manchester's exports of yarns and cotton goods to China amount to something like six millions annually, and it has long been desirable that Owen's College, as one of the most modern and practical of our Universities, should follow the older ones by recognising Chinese as a subject of study. There can be no doubt that the appointment is absolutely the best that could be made. Readers of the China Review have long been accustomed to recognise with high admiration Mr. Parker's deep bistorical and linguistic.sobolarship, never at fault in all branches of his subject, so versatile that in fact the nick-name that has been REGISTRATION OF CHINES given him (the 'Pope of Sinology') not inaccuartely describes the estimation in which he is held. Of his most recent work; one may note his copious emendations of Giles' colossal Dictionary, his papers on the Early Turks, and on Chinese grammar and his 'A Thousand forty years the United States have lost Years of the Tartars; and last the standard history of China's Diplomacy While assassination is in the air it is a and Commerce. The result of the sittings was that a report was drawn up, on 24th September last, and signed by all the members of the Committee except Mr Shewan. The members of the Committee unanimously decided, though for different reasons, that it would be inadvisable to introduce a Bill for the Registration of Partners in Chinese firms whether penal or disabling. The general ground, however, for such a decision was that it would be impracticable to give due effect to such legislation. Amongst the reasons brought forward to support such a decision were the following :-(1) That in consequence of the difference between of a partner in an insolvent firm, the Chinese would not be inclined to register their true names, and that any such registration would therefore tend to fraud and litigation; (2) The enormous expense that would be entailed owing to the difficulty of finding out who the partners in a Chinese firm are; (3) That suchlegislation would tend to drive capital from the Colony, and would serious:
